THE PALLADIUM of '91 promises to be the finest and most expensive publication ever gotten out at the University of Michigan. No labor, time, or money has been spared to make it the ideal issue of the Palladium series. The dates for its appearance has purposly been made late so that every article might receive the most careful attention, and that all the events of the entire college year might be given a place. The typographical, press and book work was all done in Buffalo by a large publishing firm which has had a great deal of experience in college press work. The publishers pronounce the Palladium as the finest thing in its time that they have ever seen. In another column we publish a review of the book. The board is to be congratulated upon the success of its work. Let no student fail to secure a copy of this handsome souvenir of college life.

THE students' reception of the base ball team on its return from the East last Tuesday night was a grand and enthusiastic one. Such a universal turn-out shows the interest that the entire University had in the players, and also the geneneral hearty appreciation of the success of the Eastern tour. The team evi lently did not expect such an ovation, and when the time came for speech-making at the campus bonfire the boys were too much overcome with their emotions to greet the crowd with anything elaborate in the speech line. The program of the evening was carried out to the satisfaction of everybody, and the whole affair was heartily appreciated by the team.

THE Choral Union closed its excellent series of concerts for the year 1890-91 last Saturday evening, with "The Redemption." This last concert was considered by the large audience present as the finest ever given by the Choral Union. The soloists rendered their parts in a highly artistic and pleasing manner, while the singing of the choruses was simply perfect. The long training under Prof. Stanley was well rewarded by these excellent results. We do not believe that the excellence or popularity of these Choral Union concerts have reached their grand climax, and we hope that next year their success may be the greatest ever known. And we have no fears but that our most sanguine expectations may be realized, as long as Prof. Stanley has charge of affairs.

THERE is a new organization in New York City which will be of interest to all students who intend to visit that city. Prof. Henry Drummond, of Edinburgh, Scotland, was instrumental in forming an inter-collegiate association of New York City students, called the Students' Movement. It is decided to open a Student Headquarters, with a bureau of information as to boarding houses, churches, pastors and the city generally. During the year the house will always be open, to students only. Receptions, addresses from prominent men, and religious meetings will be held. The aim of the movement is to offer an agency which shall personally assist the student in the city, in whatever profession or business he may be placed. The Students' Movement is the only inter-collegiate organization of its kind in New York. All students may be sure of a welcome at the building and they will find it to their advantage to visit it.

WITH the Eastern colleges four games out of the seven won, and the entire seven closely contested, is an excellent record for the University of Michigan base ball team. The results of the trip have given us the greatest satisfaction. We are glad that we have had the opportunity of trying our strength against some of the champion nines of the East, for now we can form a fair judgment of the real merits of Michigan's ball playing. We modestly believe that we can play ball with any college nine in the country. The games we put up with Yale, Brown and Harvard give us ample reason for this statement. It is with pardonable pride that we refer to the game with Harvard. The Crimson says of our players—"The Michigan men fairly out-played Harvard, who lost the game through disastrous fielding, and the inability to hit the ball safely. Codd, the Michigan pitcher, had no very remarkable curves, but he was fairly swift and proved very effective in keeping hard hit balls within easy reach of his fielders. His men supported him well, fielding very cleanly and playing with much snap throughout the entire game." The Eastern college men have been awakened to the fact that they have a strong rival in the University of Michigan. If the distance between us were not so great, the U. of M. would be right "in it" in inter-collegiate athletics of all kinds. If we keep up the work we are now doing, and with our new gymnasium and athletic field, we are not going to fall behind. The distance will be no great obstacle. Intermediate points can be arranged for, where games with all the Eastern colleges may be played. It is fair to presume that in a few years Michigan will be one of the leading spirits in the college athletics of the country.

THE year of 1892 will be of the greatest interest to Chicago, not only because of the opening of the World's Fair, but because in that year her new University will be formally opened. This latter event will be of more lasting importance and no doubt will be the means of exerting a wonderful influence on the literary tastes and culture of the great "illiterate" city. The new Baptist University at present has received nearly $2,500,000, of which $1,600,000 was the gift of John D. Rockefeller. It is expected that $8,000,000 more will be added to the present sum by the time the University is opened. Thus, richly endowed, the best talent and the most modern educational equipments will not be wanting. Dr. William R. Harper, the president of the new University, has some original plans which he intends to introduce, the success or failure of which a thorough test will alone determine. There will be four terms of twelve weeks each, each term being followed by an open week. No vacations will be given. During each half term, the student devotes his time to two studies, only, a major and a minor, which he completes at the end of that time. In this way it is intended that a student can easily complete a four years' course in three years. A student will thus be able to devote a short time exclusively to one or two studies, whereas, under the ordinary college course, several lines of study are pursued for a longer time. There are special advantages with both methods, and each theory has its particular adherents. Dr. Harper believes that his plan nearly reaches the ideal of a university education. The educational world will await with interest the results of these theories put into practice among a large body of students.

The Inlander.

The editorial board of the Inlander of next year has been elected as follows: F. L. Sherwin, P. W. Ross, Wilhelm Miller, and A. H. Covert, two of whom, as will be seen, are from the present CHRONICLE-ARGONAUT board. The officers will be elected by the board in a few days. Professors Dewey and Scott continue their connection with the magazine.

The current number has been slightly delayed, but will be out about the fifteenth of the month. Its chief feature is an article by Prof. Walter on Zolo and the Academy.

In this article the general character, style, and the merits of Zola are considered from a literary, and also from an ethical standpoint.

The manner of conducting the Inlander is to be somewhat changed in its next volume. The present year has been such a success financially that the management intends to offer prizes for the best contributions, each prize to be not less than fifty dollars. This, it is hoped will attract superior contributors, and more of them.

Before separating, the old board will have pictures taken on Monday.

In Memory of Prof. Wells.

The Webster Literary Society unveiled an oil portrait of the late Prof. W. P. Wells, in the Law Lecture Room, last night. The portrait is painted from a photograph by Mrs. S. M. Dick, and has been very well done. The large attendance showed the appreciation by the students for the professor's work. Mr. J. H. Adams, president of the society, spoke first, giving briefly the history of the society, and outlining its past and present policy. At the close of his introductory remarks he removed the veil from before the portrait.

The address of the evening was that of Prof. J. C. Knowlton. After relating the principal events of Prof. Well's life he spoke in high praise of the man, as a practitioner, teacher and interpreter of law, of his dignified and impressive style of oratory, which was that of Daniel Webster.

President Angell's remarks closed the exercises. He first referred to his long acquaintance with Prof. Wells, having known him in the East; then he spoke of his pleasure at being associated with the professor here, and of the delight that the visits of the man always gave him. Especially did he emphasize the great services rendered to the Law Department by Prof. Wells, and closed by noting that most encouraging fact, that though the men themselves pass away, their influence remains potent, and the good they have done still stands.

Harvard in the Soup.

The celebration held last Tuesday evening in honor of our base ball nine's Eastern trip was the most magnificent that has occurred here since the Pan-American congress paid us a visit. Already at about half past ten o'clock, there were about 3,000 people gathered on the hill around the depot. When the train arrived at eleven o'clock, there was a perfect pandemonium, and amid the flaring of red lights, the spouting of Roman candles, the whirring of rockets, the tooting of a thousand horns, and the loud huzzas of their fellow-students, the nine was escorted to a wagon drawn by a hundred members of the night-shirt brigade. The procession up State st. reached from the depot to Washington st. After marching around the campus and passing the President's house, all gathered on the base ball ground, where two huge piles of wood were sacrificed to the flames.

The scene here was magnificent. The flames, which leaped up at times as high as fifty feet, were reflected by the low clouds. It seemed as if the very heavens were celebrating. After the wagon with the nine men was drawn around the bonfire several times, the band and the minstrels dressed in most fantastic style afforded music and amusement to the crowd. The members of the nine were then called on for speeches. They were so overcome by the ovation that they could do nothing more than express their thanks. At about two o'clock the crowd disbanded.

A noticeable feature of the celebration was that the fun did not become destructive. Ben Franklin received no coat of red paint as John Harvard would have received had the celebration occurred at Harvard.

The flag which was borne about with the inscription "U. of M., 4, Harvard, 3," has been raised to the flag pole on top of the main building, where it floats in the air as a fitting tribute to the strength of the New West, as compared with the aristocracy of the East.

It is to be hoped that our team next year will be strong enough to cope with Eastern teams, although seven of our strongest players leave the University this year.

The Minstrels.

The performance of the University Minstrels was repeated Thursday, June 4. The audience was large and enjoyed the entertainment immensely. New features had been added to the program and altogether a very successful and creditable performance was given.

With the exception of a few new jokes by the end men, the first part of the program was the same as in previous performances.

Sam Park introduced a new ventriloquistic doll which proved quite an addition to his numerous family, and in his "Remarks," demonstrated more than ever his ability as a "funny man." His sallies kept the audience in a roar of laughter.

The after-piece was changed from the Burlesque on the Faculty Meeting, to "The Ancient Order of Whitewashers' Picnic." Here ample opportunity was afforded the entire company, for fun and amusement.

The entire performance was very creditable, for amateurs, and the audience was well pleased with the evening's entertainment.

The Palladium.

After the usual long period of anxions waiting and suspense the proof-sheets of the Palladium of '91 have at last appeared.

'91's Palladium can scarcely be said to have departed in any way from the time-honored precedent that makes of this publication a mere list of people in and about college, with only here and there a literary effort of some kind.

The volume opens with a really dainty "Prelude" from an unknown author's pen, which takes the place of the ordinary formal dedication. Following this comes the list of the Palladium board for '91, the university announcements for 1891-92, and the list of members of the faculty. Then comes the class history of '91, together with a class list, giving after the name of each senior the honors and offices conferred during the course. Class histories and complete class lists of the other three classes fill up the following pages, together with the names of the class officers in the professional departments, and the lists of the secret societies having chapters in the university.

A cut of Mr. Joshua Waterman and a short sketch of his life by Prof. McLaughlin, and sketches of Prof. D'Ooge, and of Prof. B. M. Thompson are of interest to others than university readers. Dr. Carrow has an article regarding the university hospitals.

A page headed by "In Memoriam" contains the names of the faculty and students, who have died during the present college year.

A register of the college organizations of all kinds, athletic, social, class, and political in all departments, a list of U. of M. records in athletics, and a cut of the foot-ball team come next. Poems from Maude E. Caldwell, Prof. Scott, I. K. Friedman, and J. R. Angell are scattered through the pages of the book.

The Grinds, so delicate and yet so important a part of college publications are clever and yet kindly, and add much to the interest of the Palladium.

The cover of the book is expected to surpass all previous attempts in artistic design and finish.

The dainty cuts of Mr. Travis will be appreciated by all who like good illustrations.

If the editorial board receive the support they merit in the sale of their book, they will have no reason to be dissatisfied with the result of their efforts.

The Giants were not There.

At the appointed time for the great journalistic base ball game between the "U. of M. Daily Giants" and the editorial board of the CHRONICLE-ARGONAUT this morning, the majority of the aforementioned "giants" failed to make their appearance. The inclemency of the weather caused a slight delay on the part of the CHRONICLE-ARGONAUT, but promptly at half-past ten the full quota of the CHRONICLE-ARGONAUT base ball contingent was on hand. But the daily men had vanished, whither we know not, and as their captain did not seem inclined to make any effort to get his men together we necessarily concluded that he fears to go on the field with us. There is no doubt as to the issue of this game if it ever takes place, as the ability displayed by the CHRONICLE-ARGONAUT in a recent practice game is something phenomenal. We are the people. Now is the time to pay your subscriptions.

SNAP SHOTS.

Ninety-four is already congratulating herself over the fact that in a few short weeks '95 will be upon the scene and take from them the odious name of "freshman." But let the freshmen of the next five years congratulate themselves. If they seek for a cause let them think of that unfortunate body of youngsters which, at the end of the present decade, will be known not only as freshmen, but also as the class of '00. Poor '00 will be the sport of the sophomores and when they attain the dignity of sophomores the freshmen will be still one ahead. Truly an unfortunate class?

Did you ever see the antics of the average collegian when he receives a letter from her? Recently it was our fortune to witness the period of temporary aberation of the mind of a prominent character about college, when he was the recipient of such a letter. It is impossible to find words intense enough to describe his conduct upon that occasion. He had been watching for the postman for hours as this was the day. Finally the postman arrived, our friend rushed headlong down stairs, in a manner which would have done credit to the escaping inmate of a burning house. He came back in the same violent fashion, and as he re-entered the room, a regular Comanche war-whoop issued from his throat, rendered husky by emotion. After cantering about the room in a way similar to the scoring at a horse race, he finally settled into a chair, elevated his feet upon the table, gave one more ecstatic whoop and settled back into a comatose condition, utter oblivious to his surroundings. The contortions of his face as he perused the missive signified mingled feelings of joy, hope, sadness and general insanity. When he had finished we endeavored to recall him to this earthly sphere and have him act sensibly. But all our efforts proving unfurtile we left him in his erotic nightmare, privately hoping that we did not act the same under similar circumstances.

The particulars of the lake excursion from Detroit to Buffalo are now arranged. The excursion will leave Detroit Wednesday, June 17th, at 5:00 p. m., on the steamer "Winslow." The return can be made at any time before Oct. 31.

Walter S. Holden, president of the class of '89, and Hattie Lee Hinchman, of Chicago, were married last Tuesday. The CHRONICLE-ARGONAUT extends congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Holden.

The last meeting of the Philosophical Society this semester will be held in Room 21 next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, when Prof. Scott will read a paper on "The Origin of Literary Species."

Prof. Spalding will send, in a few days, to Germany for a number of Zeiss microscopes. These microscopes are considered the finest of their kind made. The University pays no import duty on them, and so gets them for about half of what a person would pay.

The Castalian of '92 offers the following prizes: Prize song, $20; prize story, $15; prize poem, $15; prize cut, $10. Professors Walter, Demmon and McLaughlin are the judges. The board reserves the right to publish any or all of the articles contributed. Everything must be in before November 1, 1891.

The Michigan ball team after winning the game with Wesleyan last Saturday morning went to Hartford to play Trinity. Encouraged by the results of the morning game our men went in with a determination to win. Trinity was considered a strong nine, as Yale was recently defeated by her by a score of 14 to 7, and she lost to Brown by the close score of 5 to 4. However, the game with the U. of M. proved to be entirely one-sided and the Michigan men batted Hamlin, Trinity's pitcher, all over the field, and succeeded in piling up twenty scores by the end of the ninth inning. Codd's work as usual was fine and he was well supported by Walsh. The following is the score:

U. OF M. 4, HARVARD 3.

Michigan defeated Harvard in a fine game of ball on Holmes Field, Cambridge, last Monday. The Michigan team fairly outplayed Harvard at every point of the game. In battery work the visitors showed great superiority, as seven hits were made off Bates, and but two off Codd. The infield work, too, of Michigan was much ahead of Harvard's, for where the latter fumbled the ball, the former played an all but perfect game; to this infield work the victory is largely due, for Harvard found the ball often, but was not able to knock it out of the reach of the fielders, Harvard too, did some excellent fielding. With three Michigan men on bases, in the fourth, Trafford on first base jumped and caught a hot liner. Again in the eighth, with two men on bases, Cook on third took a hot liner and made a double play unassisted, thus retiring the side. But two men left on bases for Harvard, shows that her players took every opportunity to advance, and that her hits were at most fortunate times. Harvard's only safe hits were a two base hit, by Frothingham, and a three base hit by Dean. This game, together with the others of the trip, earned for the team the hearty reception given by the Michigan Students.

The score of the game is as follows:

The University of Michigan defeated Cornell, in base ball, at Detroit, May 8, by a score of 8 to 6. Codd, the pitcher of the U. of M., is said to be the best of any college team in the country. Base ball men say that he is superior to Stagg, who has gained such a reputation in a similar position in Yale's team.—Ex.

Cary, of Princeton, broke the world's record in the 100 yards dash at Morris Park last Monday. His time was  $9\frac{3}{4}$  sec. The record will probably be accepted.—Crimson.

THE INTER COLLEGIATE GAMES AT BERKELEY OVAL.

The annual inter-collegiate games were held last Saturday on the Berkeley Oval, New York City. The contests were all close and some good records were made. The games are the great sports of the year among the Eastern colleges, and each college sends its best men to contest for the honors. When the U. of M. gets her new gymnasium it is hoped that she may be able to compete in these games and carry off some of the prizes.

Last Saturday Harvard sent some excellent men to Berkeley Oval and succeeded in winning 46 points out of the whole number, 120. Yale came in second with 25 points, Princeton and Columbia coming close after with 22 and 19 points respectively. Amherst made 6 points, while Swarthmore and Cornell had 1 point each. Next season Rose Coghlan will appear in a new play called "Dorothy's Dilemma."

The Choral Union will practice Tuesday on the music for the Baccalaureate Address.

The American prima-donna, Mme. Nevada, has lately sung with great success in "Lakmé," at Bilboa, Spain.

The Detroit Free Press of yesterday speaks of the Choral Union concert as one of the best renditions of the Redemption ever given.

It is to be hoped that the time is not far distant when Ann Arbor will be able to hold such musical festivals as are held in a great many cities. Often the appreciation and the patronage is no greater than it is here.

The Choral Union will meet next Tuesday evening to rehearse for the Commencement Baccalaureate exercises. It is requested that members then return the copies of the "Redemption" to Mr. W. H. Dorrance.

The Buffalo festival last week was an event of great importance to those in that vicinity. The programs were most excellent. The Boston Symphony Orchestra furnished the orchestral music for the occasion, and the soloists were assisted by a chorus of five hundred voices.

The recent music festival in Providence had for its leading spirit Jules Jordan. The band of fifty musicians was organized by George Stewart. "The Damnation of Faust," by Berlioz; "Fair Elen" and "Arminis," by Burch, and Gounod's "Gallia" and Mendelsohn's "Elijah" were the leading works produced, with Juch, Dippel and Ludwig as the prominent soloists.

The Music Festival at Pittsfield, Mass., this week enlisted the services of the magnificent Boston Festival Orchestra of thirty-eight performers, (Emil Mollenhauer, concert master); a chorus of trained voices: Mlle. Clementine De Vere, soprano; Mrs. Jenny Patrick Walker, dramatic soprano; Miss Gertrude Edmands, contralto; Mr. George J. Parker, tenor; Mr. Gardner S. Lamson, baritone; Mr. Silas R. Mills, basso, and Dr. R. M. Davenport baritone. The program was made up of vocal and orchestral selections, and Rossini's "Stabat Mater." Three concerts were given and the whole affair was a decided success.

Students who take this course have the advantage of studying the actual manufacture of the most perfect astronomical apparatus, in the establishment of Mr. J. H. #### THE SAME OLD THREADBARE THEME.

Just the same old threadbare theme:
Love? Yes, love indeed, that's all.
Poems on it by the ream.
Market value doesn't fall.

Facts and figures quite appall.
Much that's common so 'twould seem,—
There's a pretty girl in all.
Just the same old threadbare theme.

Moonlight ride, or love-sick dream,
Summer hop, or winter ball;
Over each is spread, like cream,
Spicy sameness that I call
Just the same old threadbare theme:
Love? Yes, love indeed, that's all.

The trustees of the Western University, of Pennsylvania, have thrown open the Allegheny Observatory, made famous by the brilliant researches of Prof. S. P. Langley, (now secretary of the Smithsonian Institution) to the use of students, and have authorized the establishment of post-graduate courses in astronomical study. Prof. J. E. Keeler, the astronomer of Lick Observatory, has just been called from Mt. Hamilton, to take charge of the new work, in conjunction

A HUMBLE ROMANCE.

Her ways were rather frightened, and she wasn't much to see,
She wasn't good at small talk or quick at repartee,
Her gown was somewhat lacking in the proper cut and tone,
And it wasn't difficult to see she'd made it all alone.
So the gay young men whose notice would have filled her with delight
Paid very small attention to the little girl in white.
He couldn't talk the theatre, for he hadn't time to go,
And, though he knew that hay was high, and butter rather low,
He couldn't say the airy things that other men rehearse,
While his waltzing was so rusty that he didn't dare reverse.
The beauties whom he sighed for were most frigidly polite,
So perforce he came and sat beside the little girl in white.
She soon forgot her envy of the glittering beau monde,
For their common love for horses proved a sympathetic bond.
She told him all about the farm, and how she came to town,
And showed the honest little heart beneath the home-made gown.
A humble tale, you say—and yet he blesses now the night
When first he came and sat beside the little girl in white.

—Vassar Miscellany,

FROM MY WINDOW.

Pretty little maiden just across the way,
Why are you so saucy, can you tell me pray?
I see you move your fingers upward to your lips,
Ah, those lucky, happy, pretty finger tips.
One eye you close so slyly, and mouth so full of grace
Is twisted with all roguishness half across your face;
Then you take your fingers from your pretty lips,
And point them towards me—darling finger tips.

Pretty little maiden, I've an opera glass,
Now I'll watch you closely—roguish little lass.
But ah, I'm doomed to sorrow now I see you near.
For they are not kisses, throws the little dear.
And my heart so loving, you don't strive to wheedle;
Just as all do it, you merely thread your needle.

LITERARY NOTES.

Since the departure of Amelie Rives-Chanler from this country almost immediately after her marriage, we have had only brief newspaper paragraphs concerning her life and literary intentions. Not a little curiosity has been displayed as to the possibility of her complete withdrawal from the field of letters. It is now nearly three years since anything of importance has appeared from her pen, but no one has believed that the exceptionally brilliant author of "A Brother to Dragons" had finished her career as a writer. A recent paragraph in the daily papers announced the fact that Mrs. Rives-Chanler was hard at work upon a new novel destined to arouse the entire literary world by its artistic merit and bold originality. There have been many conjectures advanced as to the probable source through which the new novel would be given to the public. Notwithstanding the high prices which Mrs. Chanler demands for her manuscripts, it was known that many publishers were in the field in competition for her latest work. While many rumors were afloat, the Cosmopolitan Magazine had quietly secured it and placed it in the hands of a famous artist in Paris for illustration. It is announced now that the first chapters will appear in the August number of the Cosmopolitan, and that, in the estimation of critics who are most competent to judge, this last story will be the most finished, as well as interesting, product of this versatile Southern pen. The story is likely to be the literary sensation of the year. Its publication in the Cosmopolitan is a guarantee that it will contain nothing of the kind that excited criticism in Amelie Rives earlier productions.

The Century for June opens with a portrait of George Mifflin Dallas, formerly Vice-president under James Polk. This portrait accompanies the second and last installment of the papers extracted from Mr. Dallas's Journal, written while he was American Minister at the Court of the Czar, Nicholas I. In this article there is a description of the luxury and splendor of the Court. The last speech of General Sherman, delivered at the Press Club dinner to Stanley, January 31st, is printed for the first time, in this number, from manuscript, dictated by General Sherman before the delivery of the speech. Accompanying this is a picture from St. Gauden's bust, from life, of the General, and also a poem by R. W. Gilder, entitled "Sherman." "Talleyrand Replies to his Accusers" is the fourth installment of the famous Talleyrand Memoirs, in which he emphatically denies all connection with the execution of the Duc d' Enghien, or with the alleged plot to assassinate Napoleon. "A Miner's Sunday in Coloma," is the June installment to the California series. This is a vivid description of the old Forty-niners, especially their Sunday pastimes, which included gambling, racing, auctioneering, etc. This picture however, is not wholly lacking in softer aspects. One of the principal and the most timely articles in view of the coming commencement season, is "Women at an English University," in which Newnham College is described. Mrs. Burton Harrison contributes a sketch of old Virginia life, entitled, "Colonel William Byrd, of Westover, Va. The reproductions of old family portraits is a striking feature of this paper. The fiction of the number is up to the standard. Besides the regular serials there are three short stories, by authors who have never before contributed to the pages of the Century. The whole number is replete with instructive and entertaining reading.

A MECHANICAL WONDER. The Decoration Day issue of the Albany N. Y., Telegram will be the most original, unique and popular paper ever presented to the American public. Nothing like it ever attempted by a newspaper in the nineteenth century. As a mechanical wonder and a military literary library there will be nothing to even compare with it issued in this country. FOOTPRINTS OF THE WORLD'S HISTORY: It is a relief to pick up a new book that is at once thrilling, romantic, wholesome, pure, and true. Such a work is "Footprints of the World's History," the latest and greatest work of the two celebrated historians, John Clark Ridpath and Wm. S. Bryan. These distinguished gentlemen, having won their laurels by independent writings, have co-operated on this work, and produced a gem "of the purest ray serene." It is not a dry uninteresting statement of the plain facts, but rather each of the most important events of history has been taken up and described by a master of language, who holds the reader entranced as he wends his way along the path of history, following carefully in the footprints of progress. We are delighted with this superb volume. Perfect in thought, superb in style, and magnificent in execution. The bindings are sumptuous, as are also the many illustrations and colored plates. The publishers have rightly concluded that such a gem should have a rich setting. It is a valuable addition to literature. It is a book for the old as well as the young; the married as well as the single; the gay as well as the grave. Everybody will read it with equal eagerness and profit. It is sold only through agents, and the publishers' advertisement appears in another column.
